

Did you know there are whole nations, past and present, where people live respectfully with each other and the Earth -- without racism, sexism, child abuse, pollution, crime, or prisons? Where leaders are trusted, and integrity and generosity are common?

Meanwhile, so-called "civilized" nations, like France, the United States, Ecuador, and Russia endure endless injustices, needless suffering, poverty, corruption, discrimination, and abuse. Decade after decade, these troubles never end no matter who we vote for.

What will it take to make integrity, respect, generosity, and alignment with the Earth pervasive, so we can trust our neighbors and leaders?

It will take The Deepest Revolution. Based on the words and stories of people of healthy nations, nothing in this book is theoretical or too idealistic to achieve. If you're tired of our endless political and cultural problems, and you're ready for deep change in solidarity with other strong and caring people, this book is for you.
